Sinjuku Gyoen was constructed on the site of a private mansion belonging to Lord Naito, a daimyo (feudal lord) of the Edo era. Completed in 1906 as an imperial garden, it was re-designated as a national garden after WWII and opened to the public. With 58.3 ha (144 acres) in size and a circumference of 3.5 km, it blends three distinct styles, French Formal Garden, English Landscape Garden and Japanese Traditional Garden, and is considered to be one of the most important gardens from the Meiji era.

Horticultural work has been conducted in the greenhouses since 1892. The present greenhouse complex, constructed in the 50s, has a stock of more than 2,400 brilliantly coloured tropical and subtropical species on permanent display.

From cherry blossoms in spring to the soft greens of summer, the chrysanthemums and colorful leaves of autumn and the snowscapes of winter, Shinjuku Gyoen is an ideal place to get close to nature and enjoy the changing seasons, the perfect oasis for metropolitan and short-term visitors alike. (Recommended time: 1hr 30min. 10min. Walk from JR Shinjuku Station)
